

Individual Reflection 1

Due to the Easter holiday, our first week was short on time. We prioritized feasible tasks to complete within a few days, and though starting was daunting, we pushed through. While teamwork is not typically challenging for me, assigning tasks at the beginning can be difficult. During setup, I sometimes feel stuck with limited tasks. I want to improve in this area.

I typically contribute by completing available sprint tasks and offering help to others. However, I need to improve my ability to read code to contribute more effectively. It can be challenging to quickly understand and help with other's code.
